MEDIA RELEASE

The Board of Adventist Care Announces Significant Changes to its Services

Adventist Care is a well known provider of aged and disability care within Western Australia. After careful consideration, the Adventist Care Board and Executive Team have made some strategic decisions regarding the services we offer and we will now be focusing on growing our position in the ageing sector as one of WA's significant providers of residential care and retirement living.

Both the disability and ageing sectors are undergoing enormous change and growth. We believe we can better develop and enhance the support services we provide for our residents and their families by concentrating on our primary area of expertise – aged care.

Therefore today we announce that it is our intention to transition out of disability services over the coming six months. We are making this announcement now to provide our clients and employees with as much time as possible to understand the changes that are being made so that they may take any steps that flow from this decision in an informed and considered way.

Over the coming months we will be talking individually with our disability clients and families with a view to assisting them to transition to another identified service provider/s who will provide as good, if not better, support and care. Also, we will be assisting our employees working in our disability service to identify future career opportunities.

Relevant government agencies have been informed of our plans and are fully supportive of our approach, recognising that comprehensive arrangements are in place to support our clients and employees through this transition.

We recognise that this represents a significant change for both Adventist Care and those within our disability service. The decision has not been taken lightly and has been guided in large part by our desire to ensure that the ongoing wellbeing of our disability clients into the future.
